Master of Laws (LLM) in Global Comparative Constitutional Studies · 1 Year

Join one of the few LLM programs of its kind worldwide, in which we explore how constitutions address common societal challenges in diverse ways. You will examine both classic models and recent developments through comparative analysis in a problem-solving context and investigate the role of constitutions in fostering good governance in an era of globalization and rising illiberalism.

Master of Arts (MA) or Master of Laws (LLM) in Human Rights · 1 Year

Tackle today's most pressing human rights challenges from the heart of Europe with our dual US and Austrian accredited degrees. Our research-driven curriculum connects law and policy, in vibrant and engaged classes. Outside the classroom, we offer hands-on experience through internships with local NGOs, a course at the European Court of Human Rights or a study visit to the EU Fundamental Rights Agency minutes from campus. Guided by leading scholars and practitioners, you'll graduate ready to work in human rights, whether in international organizations, courtrooms, government, parliaments or civil society.

We have some of the best student to faculty ratios in any law school, in any part of the world. And we try to develop a deep, strong professional relationship with our students.
