We are a research-intensive university with a vision to transform the lives of people, their communities and the environment. This vision is consistent with a new wave of worldwide research confirming the critical impact of the early years of children's lives on their future education, health and life outcomes.

The Early Start Project, a $44 million venture within the newly created Faculty of Social Sciences, provides opportunities for local, national and international collaboration aimed at enhancing social capital and addressing disadvantage in our most vulnerable communities. Scheduled to open in early 2015, Early Start will be a strategic interdisciplinary teaching, research and community initiative which will enable a new generation of graduates to work with young children, their families and communities. Using pedagogies and technologies that shape learning for the 21st Century, Early Start will offer 'world class' teaching and research facilities as well as Australia's first Children's Discovery Centre. It will be connected to 38 Early Start Engagement Centres located across regional, rural and remote areas of NSW. The Early Start Project will afford opportunities for academic staff to be creative in their approaches to teaching, learning and research, establishing new standards across the higher education sector in Australia and the world.

PROFESSOR OF DEVELOPMENTAL PSYCHOLOGY

The Professor of Developmental Psychology will play a key role as a discipline leader in the field of developmental psychology and as a member of the Faculty professoriate. Experience in the field of cognitive psychology whilst not essential would be considered favourably.

Ref No: 24552

PROFESSOR OF EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION

The Professor of Early Childhood Education will report to the Head of the School of Education in the Faculty of Social Sciences and will collaborate as member of the Faculty professoriate. This position will be central to providing leadership in research and academic matters in the Early Years program (birth to 5 years). The Early Start project will also provide important opportunities for a focus on interdisciplinary research.

Ref No: 24551

PROFESSOR OF SOCIAL WORK

The Professor of Social Work will play a key role as discipline leader in the field of social work and as a member of the Faculty professoriate. As our Foundation Professor in Social Work, this position will provide leadership in establishing and developing an innovative research agenda with a focus on children and young people that incorporates an interdisciplinary approach.

Ref No: 24553

SENIOR LECTURER IN SOCIAL WORK

The Senior Lecturer in Social Work will play a key role in developing social work as a new area of academic study. This position will include the development of curricula relevant to a social work program and collaboration in developing an innovative research agenda.

Ref No: 24550

FACULTY OF ARTS

The Faculty of Arts is a thriving and dynamic faculty that plays a leading role in the cultural life of Northern Ireland and beyond. Many of its courses serve to underpin the development of the creative and digital economy and its languages provision plays a central role in supporting trade promotion, especially with China and Europe. The Faculty played a leading role in the development of the Languages Strategy for Northern Ireland.

The Faculty comprises five discipline-based schools: Creative Arts & Technologies; English and History; Irish Language and Literature; Media, Film and Journalism; and Modern Languages. Research degree work is co-ordinated through the Faculty's Research Graduate School and the Faculty is home to Northern Ireland's Confucius Institute.

Firmly committed to social inclusion and teaching and research excellence, the Faculty takes a modern and innovative approach to its engagement with society.

The University is now making a major investment in the future of the Faculty through a range of appointments at Professorial and Lecturer Level.

Professor of Media

Ref: 1320156/E

Base: Coleraine

The post is based in the School of Media, Film and Journalism which is recognised as a centre of excellence for its integration of media theory, industry-accredited practice and skills, and internationally excellent research. Research is co-ordinated through the Centre for Media Research (CMR) and in RAE 2008 media research at Ulster was ranked in the top 10 media submissions. Research within CMR includes: historical studies and practice-related research in film, television and photography; media policy and regulation; the press; archives and archiving; digital media; and interactive media.

The appointee to the Professorship in Media will have an outstanding personal research record, together with proven leadership skills.

Lecturer in Cinematic Arts

Ref: 1320297/E

Base: Magee

The post is based in the School of Creative Arts & Technologies, where research is carried out in the impressively renovated Foyle Arts Centre. The Cinematic Arts undergraduate degree programme is to be available at Ulster for the first time from the 2014 – 2015 academic year and so the post-holder will have the opportunity to contribute to the creation and development of the programme. S/He will contribute to teaching and assessment and will also be expected to develop practice-based research opportunities. Applicants must have relevant research outputs (practice-based or theoretical) that are suitable for return to REF 2014, possibly as an early career researcher.

For appointments at the level of Professor an attractive reward package, including a competitive starting salary, access to a pension scheme and financial assistance with relocation expenses is available.

The salary range for posts at the level of Lecturer is £32,285 to £45,967

All posts are available from an early date mutually convenient to the University and the successful candidates.

The closing date for receipt of applications is 13 May 2013.

Lecturer in Chinese and East Asian History

Ref: 1320337/E

Base: Coleraine

The post is based in the School of English and History which has a strong research base with 85% of its work assessed in RAE 2008 as world leading, internationally excellent or internationally recognised. The appointee to this post will be expected to significantly enhance the teaching and research profile of the History subject group, specifically with a view to building on existing links with China following the establishment of the Confucius Institute at the University. S/He must have a record of relevant internationally excellent publications, appropriate for submission to REF 2014, possibly as an early career researcher.

Lecturer in International History

Ref: 1322717/E

Base: Coleraine

Also based in the School of English and History, this fixed-term post will provide cover for the teaching and teaching related administrative duties of an existing member of staff who is on secondment. The appointee will enhance the teaching and research profile of the History subject group, with a specific focus on nineteenth and/or twentieth century European history.

The appointee will have a record of internationally excellent publications in history, appropriate for submission to REF2014, possibly as an early career researcher.
(Fixed-term: 1 September 2013 – 30 June 2014)

We prefer to issue and receive applications via our on-line recruitment website at www.ulster.ac.uk/jobs

Hard copy applications can be obtained by telephoning 028 7012 4072

The University is an equal opportunities employer and welcomes applicants from all sections of the community, particularly from those with disabilities. Appointment will be made on merit.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING AND MATERIALS SCIENCE

Academic Appointment

Chair in Aerospace Engineering

REF:QMUL1824

Queen Mary University of London is one of the UK's leading research-focused higher education institutions and was ranked 11th in the UK in the 2008 Research Assessment Exercise (RAE) according to the Guardian. In August 2012 Queen Mary University of London joined the elite Russell Group of UK universities.

Following a successful earlier recruitment phase, the College has released a further post in the School of Engineering and Materials Science as part of the wider, on-going investment in research excellence. The post is part of a strategy to expand research and teaching in Aerospace Engineering. Applicants with research interests in the areas of Aerodynamics, Control, Flight Mechanics, Space Systems Engineering, Aerospace Structures, and Computational Mechanics of Novel Aerospace Materials are particularly encouraged.

The post-holder is expected to provide research leadership in the area and will have a proven track record in research income generation and research achievement, demonstrated through publications. Research should enhance and/or complement existing research strengths within the School's research groups, as indicated below. A commitment to high quality teaching is also essential to support our undergraduate and postgraduate taught programmes in Aerospace Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Medical Engineering and Materials Science.

Research in the School is centred on three main research activities comprising Modelling & Simulation in Engineering Systems, Biomedical Engineering & Materials and Materials Science & Engineering.

The successful applicant will join the research group in Modelling & Simulation in Engineering Systems, involving specialists in computational and experimental methods. The School has excellent computational facilities including access to in-house parallel computing, as well as experimental facilities including wind tunnels.

The post is available immediately and is a full time, permanent post.

Professorial salary will be by negotiation within the professorial range.

A generous academic support package will be available.

Candidates must be able to demonstrate their eligibility to work in the UK in accordance with the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006. Where required this may include entry clearance or continued leave to remain under the Points Based Immigration Scheme.

Informal enquiries may be addressed to Professor David Lee (d.a.lee@qmul.ac.uk). Further details about the College and School are available at: <http://www.qmul.ac.uk> and <http://www.sems.qmul.ac.uk>.

A more detailed job specification and application form can be found via the HR website: <http://www.hr.qmul.ac.uk/vacancies/> under the reference number – QMUL1824

Deadline for receipt of applications is 3rd May 2013

SCHOOL OF HUMANITIES

The Portland Chair in New Testament Studies

Professor Scale: £54,826 - £67,395 pa

The University of Gloucestershire is seeking to appoint an outstanding scholar and academic leader to our endowed Chair in New Testament Studies. This professorial post offers the right candidate an opportunity to build on the University's distinguished tradition of research and teaching in theology, which remains an important part of our historic Anglican identity.

The Portland Chair at the University of Gloucestershire is endowed by the Sir Kirby Laing Foundation. It is one of the University's most distinguished posts held by an eminent scholar in Biblical interpretation. The Chair is a central component of the University's Anglican evangelical foundation which dates back to the 1840s.

The University of Gloucestershire is now seeking to appoint an outstanding scholar as successor to the present incumbent, Professor Andrew Lincoln, to continue and to build upon the excellence established by him since his appointment in 1999. The successful candidate must have an evident interest in and commitment to the theological interpretation of the Bible. The post is expected to commence from September 2013.

The Portland Chair is located in the School of Humanities. The Chair leads the International Centre for Biblical Interpretation (ICBI) and is instrumental in the operation and strategic direction of Theology and Religious Studies at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels. There are two active research centres in the subject area: the ICBI and the Centre for Bible & Spirituality. There are two undergraduate programmes: Religion, Philosophy & Ethics and Theology & Religious Studies. Currently, three eminent professors work in the area. Theology as a Unit has been entered in the last three RAEs with successful outcomes, and is being prepared for the 2014 REF.

For further information about the work of the Portland Chair and the School of Humanities please visit: <http://insight.glos.ac.uk/academicschools/dh/research/humsresearch/ICBI/Pages/default.aspx>

For an informal discussion please contact the Head of Humanities, Dr Shelley Saguaro, on 01242 714714.

Further details and an application form are available from our website www.glos.ac.uk/jobs or the Human Resources Department (email: hr@glos.ac.uk or telephone: 01242 715034). Please quote reference number A716.

Closing date: 25 April 2013

Interview date: Week commencing 27 May 2013

Senior Lecturer or Reader in Comparative Politics

Ref: SSC00374

At Leicester we're going places. Ranked in the top 20 universities in Britain our aim is to climb further. A commitment to high quality fused with an inclusive academic culture is our hallmark and led the Times Higher Education to describe us as "elite without being elitist".

As part of a programme of expansion, the Department of Politics and International Relations is seeking to appoint a Senior Lecturer or Reader in Comparative Politics, broadly defined. You will have an established record of publishing high quality outputs, a record of securing grant income together with clear plans to build on this, and the ability to play a lead role in the further development of this dimension of the Department's research and teaching agenda.

You will be responsible to the Head of the Department for research, teaching, administration and other activities supporting the work of the Department and developing and enhancing its reputation, both internal and external to the University, both nationally and internationally. This is a research-led post in which you will play a lead role in further developing the Department's research in the area of comparative politics and co-ordinating research activity in this area. You will be expected to take a pro-active approach to developing research collaborations, making grant applications, organising conferences and seminars, and enhancing the research profile of the Department. You will also be expected to undertake some undergraduate and postgraduate teaching and research degree supervision.

THE UNIVERSITY OF HONG KONG

香港大學

Founded in 1911, The University of Hong Kong is committed to the highest international standards of excellence in teaching and research, and has been at the international forefront of academic scholarship for many years. The University has a comprehensive range of study programmes and research disciplines spread across 10 faculties and about 100 sub-divisions of studies and learning. There are over 23,400 undergraduate and postgraduate students coming from 50 countries, and more than 1,800 members of academic and academic-related staff, many of whom are internationally renowned.

School of Modern Languages and Cultures (SMLC)

(A) Assistant Professor in Hong Kong Studies (Ref.: 201300189) (B) Assistant Professor in Japanese-Korean Studies (Ref.: 201300190) (from September 1, 2013 or as soon as possible thereafter, on a three-year fixed-term basis, with the possibility of renewal. An appointee with demonstrated performance will be considered for tenure towards the end of the second three-year contract)

For post (A), applicants should have a Ph.D. degree or equivalent that focuses on any aspect of Hong Kong society, history, politics or culture by the date of appointment. The appointee will join the new, interdisciplinary Hong Kong Studies program and should have a demonstrated capacity to develop and teach courses that explore Hong Kong's global impact and engagement. A willingness and capacity to teach courses that connect to at least one of the following would be favorably considered: (i) the School's European Studies and American Studies programmes; and/or (ii) the School's programme in Global Creative Industries. Capacity to work in Cantonese and Mandarin is fundamental to the position. The Hong Kong Studies program commences in September 2013 and will be the flagship location for research on Hong Kong internationally. Commencing with an undergraduate Major in Hong Kong Studies, the program will also offer research postgraduate programs at M.Phil. and Ph.D. levels. As the key site for Hong Kong Studies, the program will coordinate teaching on Hong Kong Studies across the University and serve as a major generator of research on Hong Kong. Academics in the program will be active in promoting knowledge of Hong Kong internationally, nationally and locally through broad community engagement. Applicants who have responded to the last advertisement (Ref.: 201100973) are welcome to re-apply.

For post (B), applicants should have a Ph.D. degree or equivalent. The successful candidate should have teaching and research interests in transnational connections between Japan and Korea, and explore such areas as film studies, popular culture, or other visual and performing arts across cultures or disciplines. Responsibilities will include teaching at both undergraduate and graduate levels, mentoring students, and contributing to building the curriculum. The candidate must exhibit promise of leadership and vision, possess an excellent research agenda, and have an energetic and engaging personality for propelling the School to the next level of excellence.

For both posts, the successful candidates are expected to develop vigorous, independent research agenda, to excel in undergraduate and postgraduate teaching, and to participate in the administration of the School. Professorial staff in this school teach at least three courses annually. The SMLC, the University and the Hong Kong Research Grants Council provide substantial competitive funding for research projects of all kinds. Information about the School can be obtained at <http://www.hku.hk/smlc/>. Enquiries about the posts should be sent to Professor Louise Edwards, SMLC (e-mail: ledwards@hku.hk).

A globally competitive remuneration package commensurate with the appointee's qualifications and experience will be offered. At current rates, salaries tax does not exceed 15% of gross income. The appointment will attract a contract-end gratuity and University contribution to a retirement benefits scheme, totalling up to 15% of basic salary, as well as leave and medical benefits. Housing benefits will be provided as applicable.

Applicants should send a completed application form, a letter of application, C.V., a writing sample of scholarly work, an abstract of a current research project, evidence of teaching ability (e.g. sample syllabi, student teaching evaluations), and three reference letters (one of which must explicitly address the candidate's teaching ability) to smlcsena@hku.hk. Application forms (341/1111) can be obtained at <http://www.hku.hk/apptunit/form-ext.doc>. Further particulars can be obtained at <http://jobs.hku.hk/>. Please state clearly in the form the post and level applied for. Closes May 20, 2013.

The University thanks applicants for their interests, but advises that only shortlisted applicants will be notified of the application result.
