The Strathclyde Chancellor's Fellowship Scheme

Bold, imaginative and innovative
Exceptional research vision
Join the UK University of the Year

We were named UK University of the Year at the Times Higher Education awards because we are "bold, imaginative and innovative". The award reflects our status as a leading international technological university and "a place of useful learning", our close links with business and industry and our commitment to making a difference to our students, our community and to society worldwide.

Through the Strathclyde Chancellor's Fellowship we are seeking to appoint up to 50 exceptional early career academics in strategically important research areas. Normally appointed at Lecturer level, the Fellowship will last for 5 years during which you will be supported to establish your career as a research leader and achieve rapid career progression.

You will hold a PhD, have postdoctoral research experience and an emerging high quality publication track record. Your research interests should align with our own and you should be able to clearly articulate your research vision.

To apply, impress us with your 5 year research plan at www.strathvacancies.co.uk

The University of Strathclyde is a charitable body, registered in Scotland, with registration number SC015263.

We value diversity and welcome applications from all sections of the community.

Director of Library and Learning Support Services

The University has a reputation for going its own way and doing things differently, current prime examples are the exciting major growth activity round 5G mobile communications and veterinary science. Surrey aims to be one of the world's leading universities and is now a top 10 UK University.

Having recently invested more than £14 million in the redevelopment of the University Library and Learning Centre building, the University is seeking to appoint an experienced and engaged strategic leader to take forward the direction and management of Library and Learning Support Services.

Working closely with and reporting to the Vice-President and Deputy Vice Chancellor, Academic Affairs, you will align the service with the University's academic quality standards and enhancement activities. You will work closely with staff within academic faculties and in other support departments to plan and deliver effective, integrated information, learning and research services to staff, students and the wider academic community.

Success in the role will stem from well-developed leadership and relationship-management skills, complemented by an in-depth, comprehensive knowledge of library and information provision, gained through extensive experience. An ability to demonstrate strategic thinking and financial acumen will be essential. With a passion for excellence and a vision for the development of information and learning services to address changes in higher education, you will be motivated to build strong relationships both internally and externally in order to further strengthen an area of significant strategic importance to the University and its reputation.

Informal enquiries can be made to Professor Gill Nicholls, Vice-President and Deputy Vice Chancellor (Academic Affairs), G.Nicholls@surrey.ac.uk.

Please apply online at www.surrey.ac.uk/jobs If you are unable to apply online please contact Karen Chessman, Deputy Director of HR (Operations), at k.chessman@surrey.ac.uk or telephone 01483 689159 quoting ref: 9517

Closing date: 1 August 2013.

We acknowledge, understand and embrace diversity.

Director

Curtin Health Innovation Research Institute – Biosciences

Curtin University has a bold vision of becoming a recognised international leader in research and education. It is well placed to meet this vision, with more than 45,000 students, a strong financial base and a highly international outlook. Curtin is now entering an exciting phase as it focuses on building a richer research culture and employing specialist technology to transform the learning experience of its students.

Curtin is seeking to appoint an outstanding research leader to the position of inaugural Director of the Curtin Health Innovation Research Institute, Biosciences (CHIRI Biosciences). The University has significantly invested in infrastructure for biosciences research to support the vision of CHIRI Biosciences. The Institute sits within the Faculty of Health Sciences and is at the core of a $35 million precinct which includes purpose-built laboratories and research facilities. The precinct unites leading researchers in biomedical and pharmaceutical sciences and public health.

This is an exceptional opportunity to develop and implement a strategic plan and vision for CHIRI Biosciences research at Curtin, and drive an agenda of growth and development for the Institute. The Director should possess a distinguished record of research and competitive grants success, supported by proven leadership skills. They should also be capable of positioning CHIRI for rapid growth in the primary research outputs of grant income, leading research publications, and the promotion of a quality experience for higher degree and post-doctoral researchers.

A competitive remuneration package which includes generous research support will be offered to attract outstanding candidates.

For a confidential discussion please contact Bill Kett at Heidrick & Struggles on +61 3 9012 3043.

DIRECTOR OF HUMAN RESOURCES

Six figure package Durham

Attractive benefits

This is a fascinating opportunity for a highly proficient and inspirational Human Resources Director to deliver a step change in people management at a leading Russell Group and world top 100 university. Durham is consistently ranked as one of the UK's top five universities with strength in research and education across all disciplines. It offers a unique student experience borne out of a strong collegiate culture. It has a growing international reputation, recruiting staff and students from around the world. In the face of the de-regulation and globalisation of UK higher education, Durham recognises that it must continue to develop and modernise as an organisation and enhance its human capital.

While you may be new to the sector you will have empathy with the aims of Higher Education and the intellectual curiosity and credibility to make a major contribution to the University.

For a confidential conversation, please contact our advisers at Harvey Nash, Anne Esler or Alexandra Gould on 020 7333 8180.

For full details of this position, please visit Durham University's Website at <http://www.dur.ac.uk/jobs>

University Health Board

The Florence Nightingale Foundation Chair in Clinical Nursing Practice Research

Cardiff School of Nursing and Midwifery Studies is a dynamic, innovative and forward looking School with recognised excellence in learning, teaching and research; it is committed to the development of nursing and midwifery knowledge which directly improves health outcomes and health care for patients. Research within the School stands at the forefront of nursing theory, policy and practice and enjoys an international reputation for quality.

Cardiff and Vale University Health Board is the largest NHS organisation in Wales and provides first class acute and specialist services for the population across Cardiff and the Vale of Glamorgan, and serves a wider population across South and Mid Wales for a range of specialties including paediatric, renal and cardiac care, neurological services and bone marrow transplantation for which the Health Board is regarded as a centre of excellence.

The Florence Nightingale Foundation is a living memorial to Florence Nightingale and advances the study of nursing and midwifery and promotes excellence in clinical practice. The Foundation raises funds to provide a range of scholarships for nurses and midwives to study at home and abroad, to promote innovation in practice, and to extend knowledge and skills to meet changing needs.

In partnership with the Florence Nightingale Foundation, Cardiff School of Nursing and Midwifery Studies and Cardiff and Vale University Health Board wish to make a new Professorial appointment in the field of Clinical Nursing Practice Research. This will represent a unique opportunity to demonstrate academic leadership in translating research directly into clinical care, supporting innovation and enhancing the patient experience.

You will be a recognised leader in the field of Clinical Nursing Practice research, with a doctoral qualification in a relevant subject and ideally an NMC recordable teaching qualification. You will have extensive clinical experience, a record of innovative clinical research and high quality peer reviewed publications. You will be a highly effective communicator, a team player and have a clear understanding of the relationships between teaching, research and the development of clinical nursing practice. You will also be a credible ambassador in support of the work of the Florence Nightingale Foundation.

This is a full time position of 35 hours (1 FTE) per week.

Salary: a point on the Professorial scale

UCL Qatar

UCL Qatar will be launching a new MA in Library and Information Studies in September 2013. This exciting new degree will support the vision of Qatar to become a Knowledge Society by enabling the creation of a body of professional expertise and leadership in the library and information field. The degree will be delivered in collaboration with Hamad bin Khalifa University (HbKU) and Qatar University (QU), and within the broader context provided by the Qatar Foundation, the Qatar National Library, and the growing cultural and information environment in Qatar. This partnership creates a unique opportunity to establish Qatar as a regional centre for cultural heritage, bibliography, and research in the information sciences.

The programme will be a sister degree to the MA in Library and Information Studies which is offered by the UCL Department of Information Studies in London, UK. While managed and based in Qatar, the new MA is academically aligned with the UCL Department of Information Studies and the UCL Faculty of Arts and Humanities in London.

Senior Lecturer in Library and Information Studies - Reference 1348216

The appointment will be full time on UCL Grade 9. The salary range will be 287,498 - 314,075 Qatari Riyals per annum + generous support package, exclusive of London Allowance.

The successful candidate will be expected to establish, manage and develop the new MA programme; to collaborate and liaise with colleagues in UCL Qatar, UCL in London, and partner organisations to establish and deliver the MA programme, and to progress partnership activities with HbKU and QU; and to carry out high-quality research, teaching, public engagement and administration within UCL Qatar, with a teaching focus on the MA in Library and Information Studies.

Lecturer in Library and Information Studies - Reference 1348238

The appointment will be full time on UCL Grade 8. The salary range will be 220,555 - 263,185 Qatari Riyals per annum + generous support package, exclusive of London Allowance.

The successful candidate will be expected to carry out high-quality research, teaching, public engagement and administration within UCL Qatar, with a teaching focus on the MA in Library and Information Studies.

The post holders will be line managed by the Director of Teaching and Learning at UCL Qatar and will liaise regularly with colleagues in the UCL Department of Information Studies in London, UK.

Candidates for both the above posts must have a PhD in a relevant subject and a professional qualification in a library or information science field. They must also show evidence of active involvement in research at university level and teaching or teaching support in Higher Education in a relevant area.

For any general enquiries about the above posts please contact Vanda Broughton, email: v.broughton@ucl.ac.uk

UCL Qatar is an ambitious joint venture by the Qatar Foundation, UCL, and Qatar Museums Authority, situated in Doha, Qatar. It currently offers three Masters' programmes in Museum and Gallery Practice; Conservation Studies; and Archaeology of the Arab and Islamic World; all three are awarded by UCL. UCL Qatar is one of eight partners of the newly-established Hamad bin Khalifa University, and two collaborative programmes eventually leading to HbKU-awarded degrees are currently being developed. One of these is the Diploma in Academic Research and Methods, a six-months programme to prepare students for postgraduate study. The Course Co-ordinator for this programme is based at UCL Qatar in Doha and is a member of the DARM Programme Team.

Senior Teaching Fellow - Reference 1348213

The appointment will be full time on UCL Grade 8. The salary range will be 220,555 - 263,185 Qatari Riyals per annum + generous support package, exclusive of London Allowance.

The Senior Teaching Fellow has overall responsibility for the co-ordination and day-to-day running of all aspects of the DARM and contributes to the syllabus design under the supervision/direction of the International Academic Co-ordinator at UCL.

Duties include day-to-day co-ordination and management of the DARM, active teaching contribution, and contribution to course design, review and assessment. Further duties include liaison within UCL Qatar and HbKU and representing the programme to stakeholders and students.

Teaching Fellow - Reference 1348214

The appointment will be full time on UCL Grade 7. The salary range will be 174,295 - 214,155 Qatari Riyals per annum + generous support package, exclusive of London Allowance.

The Teaching Fellow will provide regular teaching in academic writing and research methods to pre-Masters' students in the DARM, as well as writing support to current Masters' students at UCL Qatar. Further duties include significant contribution to student assessment and quality assurance of the course.

The Teaching Fellow posts are initially fixed term for three years.

Applicants for the Teaching Fellow posts need to have a graduate degree (MA/MSc) in a relevant subject and a proven track record of DELTA teaching, including in academic writing. They need to have experience in teaching international students and in teaching outside the UK.

For any general enquiries about the Teaching Fellow posts please contact Professor Thilo Rehren, Director, UCL Qatar, email: director.qatar@ucl.ac.uk

To apply for these vacancies and for further details please go to <http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/jobs/> and search on the relevant Reference Number. Download the "Information to be provided by CV applicants" document attached to the advert, complete it, and return it by email together with the standardised cover letter with your CV which should include details of your background/experience, explaining your suitability for the post you are applying for, as well as the names and contact details of three referees (including at least two academic referees), and the standardised monitoring information to jobapplications.qatar@ucl.ac.uk

UCL Qatar requires applicants applying with a CV to provide standardised monitoring information.

Closing date for all posts: 23rd July 2013

Latest time for the submission of applications: 5 pm (GMT).

Any offer of employment will be subject to a Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) check.

Quality Enhancement Manager

Salary circa £40K, dependent upon skills & experience

Here at the University of Derby we are in the business of creating opportunities to transform lives – we aim to be the ambitious student's natural choice for quality, support and achievement – would you like to help us achieve this?

The University seeks to appoint two Quality Enhancement Managers in the Institute for Learning Enhancement and Innovation (LEI). You will be responsible for driving and promoting the University's quality assurance and quality enhancement agendas, ensuring compliance with the new QAA UK Quality Code for Higher Education.

You must have significant, proven HE experience of developing, implementing, monitoring and reviewing quality assurance and quality enhancement procedures and processes at an institutional level. This will be combined with a thorough, in-depth knowledge of the QAA's UK Quality Code for Higher Education. Ideally, you will have also managed external reviews and audits, such as QAA Institutional Audits.

You will work closely with a team of senior managers within the Institute for Learning Enhancement and Innovation (LEI) and programme teams from all faculties and departments across the University to maintain and enhance the quality of our provision.
