Belfast School of Architecture and the Built Environment

Professor of Architecture Ref: 1791998/E

Ulster University has developed a new ambitious strategic plan to deliver a university that is sustainable and innovative with a strong international reputation. The formation of the Faculty of Computing, Engineering and the Built Environment brought together part of the former School of Architecture (i.e. the subjects of Architecture and Architectural Technology and Management) and merged that with the School of the Built Environment creating the largest School within the Faculty with circa 1200 students and 66 academic staff; which creates the Belfast School of Architecture and the Built Environment.

The Built Environment Research Institute is an integral part of the School and is at the forefront of delivering research that addresses the changing needs of society in a more sustainable manner.

The strategic appointment of a Professor of Architecture will provide leadership in research in the field of architecture shaping the strategy which will secure Architecture at Ulster as being internationally recognised and world leading in the field. The post holder will be a dynamic individual who will make a substantial contribution in Architecture research at Ulster through seeking out opportunities to develop and extend our research reach and impact whilst also working collaboratively demonstrating leadership in knowledge transfer and workforce development. Additionally s/he will support the delivery of teaching at both undergraduate and postgraduate level. As Professor, the post holder will be expected to provide academic and strategic leadership within their own area of expertise and in support of the Head of School.

The successful applicant will have a determined and resilient approach to leadership, encouraging creativity and innovation and be able to build strong stakeholder relationships so as to play a key strategic role in enabling the University to fulfil its potential.

The University offers an attractive reward package including a competitive starting salary, access to an attractive pension scheme and financial assistance with relocation expenses where appropriate.

The closing date for the receipt of applications is 8 March '19.

We prefer to issue and receive applications via our on-line recruitment website at www.ulster.ac.uk/jobs

Hard copy applications can be obtained by telephoning 028 7012 4072

The University is an equal opportunities employer and welcomes applicants from all sections of the community, particularly from those with disabilities. Appointment will be made on merit.

香港中文大學
The Chinese University of Hong Kong

Professor in Neuroscience and Director of Neuroscience Centre

The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) seeks to appoint a distinguished scholar as the academic and executive director of the Gerald Choa Neuroscience Centre (GCNC). As an important discipline in biomedical science, neuroscience research at CUHK has a long history and notable achievements. Established with a generous and purposeful philanthropic endowment, the GCNC aims to be a world-class centre of excellence in multi-disciplinary neuroscience research, including neurogenetics, neural circuits and behavior, regenerative neuroscience, neural-vasculature interactions, neuromodulation and brain-machine interface, and other key research areas in neuroscience.

Applicants should be an accomplished academic with (i) an outstanding record of scholarship appropriate for senior appointment at the level of a full Professor; (ii) an appreciation of the breadth and depth of neuroscience, in particular the development of cutting-edge innovations; (iii) experience in leading well-funded, internationally-recognized, and multi-disciplinary collaborative research programmes; (iv) demonstrated leadership and management ability at an appropriate level in higher education institutions; (v) long-term vision for the development of a contemporary centre of research excellence; and (vi) excellent interpersonal and communication skills to enable professional consortial interactions among different stakeholders.

The appointee will (a) be responsible for the vision and stewardship of the research centre; (b) undertake overall responsibilities for academic, staff and resource matters; and (c) provide strong academic leadership especially in planning and leading research directions of the centre. Depending on his/her specialty area of scholarly interests, the selected candidate will be affiliated to an academic unit. While appointment will normally be made on contract basis for up to five years initially, outstanding candidate with an exceptional record of research and scholarship and a remarkable academic standing internationally will be considered for substantive appointment with tenure forthwith. Salary and fringe benefits for the post will be highly competitive, commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Founded in 1963, The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) is a forward-looking comprehensive research university with a global vision and a mission to combine tradition with modernity, and to bring together China and the West. The University is home to nearly 17,000 undergraduate and 3,600 postgraduate students from around the world. As a top university in Hong Kong and Asia, CUHK aims to nurture students with both specialized knowledge and wisdom for life. The education experience at CUHK is distinguished by a flexible credit unit system, a College system, bilingualism and multiculturalism. CUHK offers general education courses to broaden students' perspectives and develop in them the ability to face the challenges of contemporary society. Members of the university community undertake a wide range of research programmes in many subject areas, and the University strives to provide scope for all academic staff to undertake consultancy and collaborative projects with industry. The University's insistence on the highest standards of research has won it an enviable research reputation. With a team of over 3,000 full-time teaching and research staff, the University offers a broad spectrum of programmes up to the PhD level in various disciplines across its eight Faculties (Arts, Business Administration, Education, Engineering, Law, Medicine, Science and Social Science). Further information about CUHK may be found online at <http://www.cuhk.edu.hk>.

At the University of Huddersfield, we have a lot to be proud of. Not only are we climbing the education league tables in both the Guardian and the Times, we are also receiving national recognition for our work across a number of areas.

Our leadership and management team won Outstanding Contribution to Leadership Development at the Times Higher Education Awards in 2015. In 2016, the University was ranked as the first in England for professionally qualified teaching staff. In 2017, the University won the first Global Teaching Excellence Award, recognising the University's commitment to world-class teaching and its success in developing students as independent learners and critical thinkers (Higher Education Academy). We are proud to have been recognised as a gold-rated University by the Teaching Excellence Framework (TEF) in 2018.

The University invested in the Barbara Hepworth Building, which will become the new home for the School of Art, Design and Architecture, due to open mid 2019. The £30m investment embodies all that is current, contemporary and creative, offering huge potential to act as a catalyst for future connectivity, setting the scene for collaboration and learning.

Named after the famous West Yorkshire born sculptor and designed for experimentation, the building will provide staff and students the opportunity to develop, curate and exhibit their work in innovative spaces, utilising fully extensive and world-leading workshop facilities, both physical and digital.

Art, Design and Architecture, a School of Global Significance, incorporates the Departments of Architecture and 3D Design; Art and Communication; and Fashion and Textiles. The new building will be a catalyst for transdisciplinary activities across all our portfolio of activities, including teaching, research and enterprise.

The School is investing in the development of new areas of activity to broaden its current portfolio.

The School has a strong research position, with world leading research in areas such as Disaster Resilience and Lean Construction. It supports practice-based and impact led research across the areas of Art and Design.

We are looking for inspiring academics from around the globe to join our community and play a pivotal role in its future development and success.

Applications for these posts are encouraged from all members of the community:

- Professor/Associate Dean (International and Recruitment)
- Professor/Head of Department in Fashion and Textiles
- Professor in Animation
- Professor in Fashion and Textiles
- Reader in Landscape Architecture
