Administrative Building

The Faculty of Medicine of the European University has been operating since 2014. The aim of the faculty is to ensure the training of students in the field of health care in terms of academic freedom and institutional autonomy.

The teaching process at the faculty is led by well-known and recognized specialists in the field, who have many years of medical and pedagogical experience. A variety of teaching and assessment methods provide an opportunity to master not only theoretical knowledge, but gain practical skills as well.

The Faculty of Medicine has signed cooperation agreements with more than 60 clinics in Georgia, as well as with medical universities in different countries around the world.

Based on the aforementioned, apart from the practical training provided as part of the study program, students have an opportunity to undertake clinical rotations at various clinics around the world, get involved in ongoing research projects at the faculty and participate in local and international scientific events. To further support development of students' research skills, the scientific journal "Biomedical and Core Clinical Research Practice" has been issued since 2020.

There is a simulation center at the faculty, where clinical / sectoral skills are taught and assessed through modern medical technologies, mannequins in a simulation clinical environment.

The building of the Faculty of Medicine

The European University has become the owner of the Jo Ann Medical Center, which was renamed and at present is known as "Jo Ann University Hospital". Jo Ann University Hospital is chaired by Tamar Zarginava, the Vice-Rector of the European University. It is planned to increase the capacity of the university hospital by equipping it with multi-disciplinary functions. The medical students of the European University undertake clinical rotations in the clinic, where they are supervised by the leading specialists in the field. The Jo Ann University Hospital offers both inpatient and outpatient services to its patients in accordance with the latest standards.

The Jo Ann Medical Center was founded twenty-six years ago by American philanthropist Jo Ann McGowan together with Georgian surgeons. Over the years, the name “Jo Ann Medical Center” has been associated with the country’s primary cardiology and cardiac surgery services. Lately, it has been transformed into a multi-functional medical facility.
